What's New In?

FinitySoft Memory Manager is yet another software solution developed to free up memory manually or automatically and thus boost computer performance as much as possible. With a professional-looking GUI that comprises a graphic to let you keep an eye on memory usage, FinitySoft Memory Manager is aimed at both beginners and more experienced users, although some options require a bit more computer knowledge. The main window of the app displays the free RAM amount, memory load index, uptime and CPU usage, but many more goodies are hiding under the "Options" screen. The tabbed layout of this particular menu brings all the other features in the spotlight, thus helping you automatically free memory when specific thresholds are reached. You can thus adjust alarm RAM level, the amount of memory to free, the number of retries if the desired amount is not freed and the update interval. There are also some other settings to play with, including those concerning the program's design - with multiple skins included in the package - and the hotkeys you can use to quickly free RAM. FinitySoft Memory Manager can quietly stay in the Tray and automatically optimize the RAM according to the user-defined configuration, but you can always do it manually with the help of the aforementioned keyboard shortcuts. It doesn't slow down the system at all, but instead it works like a charm on all Windows versions, without the need for administrator privileges. All things considered, FinitySoft Memory Manager indeed does its job and doesn't require advanced computer experience to serve its purpose. A help manual is however available in order to make sure you figure out how to use each feature.

The BIG FOUR LUCAS!!! The original triad all watching the same TV show. Cipher #1 I really do like this show though and there is one episode that I like more than any other. I'll have to get to that one. The best character in the show is this kid named Wally who is obsessed with a show called Digimon, I mean... why is it the best show? Because it's completely BORING, the premise is: this kid, his life is ruined because his Digimon, (which sounds like a cross between DIABOT and THIS show's DRATIN), is supposed to get mangled because of him getting a mug with a famous Digimon on it. The second best character is this DIABOT named Leomon. Really this DIABOT sounds like someone with a really irritating disease that takes over their body and makes them look like the murderous LEPONMON. Leomon is just this bully who has this disease and he is constantly mad at the kid for beating him up. Now, this disease is so popular that someone uses it on REAL DIABOTS to make them look
